Outcome of the conference participation

The presentation at the Workshop on Proof Theory, Modal Logic, and Reflection Principles (Wormshop) greatly enhanced my visibility in the proof theory and modal logic communities. The event provided a great opportunity to share my work with leading experts, who offered insightful feedback. As a result, I established new connections with researchers whose work intersects with mine, particularly in areas related to computational complexity and automated theorem proving. These interactions lay the groundwork for potential collaborations that align with the objectives of WG2 and WG3, which focus on advancing formal methods and reducing complexity in automated theorem provers. Additionally, the workshop has broadened my professional network, and I anticipate that the discussions initiated here will positively influence my future research. (max.500 word)
